Investment boost for peninsula's 'digital hub'

by Dick Townsend-Smith

GREENWICH Peninsula's reputation as a major player in the UK's digital industry got a big boost after one of the world's top technology firms signed an investment deal.

Cisco Systems sealed the multi-million pound deal with Greenwich Council and Ravensbourne to help set up a 'digital hub' on the peninsula in partnership with the council's Digital Enterprise Greenwich.

The area looks set to become one of London's leading technology centres, with the site bringing together cutting-edge businesses and the state-of-the-art college.

The announcement comes as part of a huge investment into the UK by the American company.

It's the first foray into London for the US giant, and the firm's Greenwich base is one of just two in England so far.

Cisco's investments will provide new technology at both Digital Enterprise Greenwich and at Ravensbourne – particularly in the areas of teleconferencing and networking which the company specialises in.

Cllr Denise Hyland, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "This is great news for Digital Enterprise Greenwich and Ravensbourne. It means the digital businesses we already have here and those who set up shop on the peninsula will have access to some of the leading technology and leading players in the industry. This deal sees a real landmark in the vision for the peninsula, the new digital community is growing all the time and this reinforces our aspirations to become an internationally respected digital cluster."

In my opinion

Why it's a MUST to have the jab

AS the evenings draw in and the weather begins to get colder, it's the time of year when many people start to think about how to stay fit and healthy through the winter.

Flu is not just a cold. It makes us feel awful and we would all like to avoid a bout of it if we can.

But for some people, flu is more severe. It can lead to serious illness and even admission to hospital.

You are most vulnerable at any age if you have a long-term health condition such as a heart problem, liver or kidney disease, a breathing problem such as asthma or emphysema, diabetes or have had a stroke. People aged 65 years and over, and pregnant women, are also at increased risk. If you fall in to one of these groups, it's extremely important that you protect your health by having the vaccination this winter.

Last year, only half of everyone in Greenwich with a long-term health condition who was entitled to the vaccination actually had their jab. This year we're working hard to dispel some of the myths around the flu vaccination. For example, people often think that the vaccination gives you flu.

In fact, it does not contain the "live" virus, so it can't. Your arm may feel a bit sore, and some people get a slight temperature and aching muscles for a couple of days afterwards, but most people are fine.

And it's a myth that one jab protects you for life. The viruses that cause flu change every year, so you need a vaccination each year that matches the new viruses. We really want more people to protect themselves against flu by having their jab as soon as possible this year.

All you need to do is contact your GP and make an appointment. There are also a number of pharmacies in the borough also offering the free flu jab: you don't need to book, just go along. A full list of these pharmacies is available on our website, at www.selondon.nhs.uk

Give your views on 2012 traffic plans

RESIDENTS and businesses are being urged to attend a series of drop-ins where they can find out about transport and traffic management plans in Greenwich during the Olympic Games.

The sessions will be held at Devonport House, King William Walk, Greenwich on: Thursday, October 20 – 4pm-7pm (Westminster Room)

Friday, October 21 – 9am-6pm (Holbrook Room)

Saturday, October 22 – 9am-5pm (Holbrook Room).

During the three-day exhibition locals can see plans on proposed road closures, the introduction of a one-way gyratory system, bus diversions, station closures, changes to controlled parking zone operating hours and residents' parking bays. These plans may affect parking charges and delivery schedules for businesses and will affect Greenwich town centre and surrounding areas.

Plans will also provide information on the primary routes spectators and athletes will use to access the Greenwich Park venue, blue badge, cycle and taxi parking and park and ride facilities.

Representatives from the council and the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG) will be on hand to answer questions and show plans. The sessions are being run by LOCOG who are working with Greenwich Council, the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and Transport for London to get an integrated transport plan for the three Olympic and Paralympic venues in Greenwich. Similar events will be held for the North Greenwich Arena (The O2) and for The Royal Artillery Barracks in Woolwich later in the year. The London Games are set to have a huge impact on travel – both private and public transport – as thousands of athletes, Games officials and visitors pour into the borough. These drop-in sessions are a unique chance for people to learn more and air their views on the proposed traffic management plans before they are finalised for formal consultation. # Tree tributes

Living memorials dedicated to victims of war

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A POIGNANT note of remembrance was sounded as Woolwich celebrated the climax of its Back to Business week in General Gordon Square.

Commemorative trees were rededicated in a sombre tribute during the morning's festivities to mark the end of a week of special offers and discounts by businesses in the town centre.

The morning ceremony was opened by Greenwich mayor Jim Gillman before the rededication of plaques and trees in the new-look square.

Three trees, planted to remember those who lost their lives or suffered during the Second World War, were marked by engraved plaques and rededicated by civic and community leaders.

A Dove tree was rededicated to the memory of those who served in the Burma campaign 1941-45. The plaque features the Kohima Epitaph:

*When you go home,
Tell them of us and say,
For your tomorrow,
We gave our today.*

Kohima has a large cemetery for allied war dead and was the scene of 50 continuous days of fierce fighting during the Burma campaign. Although hopelessly outnumbered, British troops managed to repel the Japanese forces, eventually allowing allied forces to recapture Burma.

The Burma Star was a medal awarded to all who fought in the Far East campaign, and is the official emblem of the Burma Star Association. The plaque was laid by Idris Jones from the association.

A second tree was rededicated to the memory to those who perished in the Holocaust, and to Jewish members of HM Forces killed in action. The plaque was laid by Frank Lerner, representing the borough's Jewish community. Mr Lerner, who is the Chair of Governors at Plumstead Manor School, told visitors: "Woolwich once had a vibrant Jewish community, many of whose members like my mother had come to Britain to escape prejudice and anti-Semitism, which was practised on a huge scale in Europe and Russia. During the Second World War, many of these people lost whole families. This tree is our memorial to all of them, and also a reminder to us all that we should oppose racism and prejudice so that our children can grow up in a safe and harmonious world."

The third tree was rededicated to the Victory in Europe when Hitler's fascist tyranny was finally defeated, and to remember the millions who died in the struggle for democracy in Europe. This was led by Greenwich Council leader Chris Roberts, who laid the plaque with

Georgie's girls!

BBC newsreader George Alagiah visits Eltham school

by Rod Kitson

STUDENTS at Eltham Hill were given an insight into the world of top-level journalism when BBC news anchor George Alagiah dropped in for a chat.

The 55-year-old told the Year 10 girls: "You are the new generation and it's your chance to start running the world, to change it for the better.

"You might not know it yet, but you all have an amazing talent. The only thing you have to do now is find out what it is and where it will take you."

The Six O'Clock Newsreader was at the Eltham girls' school on October 11 as part of the Speakers for Schools programme which sees public figures giving aspirational talks to young people.

George told of his own personal journey, from Sri Lanka to England via Ghana. He added: "If you'd said to my parents then that I would become a news reader in some far away land – the land of the Queen – they'd have laughed at you, and rightly so!"

The scruffy-looking satchel which the newsman takes everywhere with him has been his lucky charm ever since it saved his life.

"We were reporting from a war zone and the house we were in was being shelled," he said. "We moved to another building, but I realised I'd left my bag. As I ran across the road to get it a shell went through the door of the house I'd just been in and it was completely destroyed."

As a lad he was sent to boarding school in Portsmouth before going on to Durham University.

"The power of opportunity' are the four words that sum up my life," he added. "Opportunity is a gift, but you do have to work at it – there is no substitute for hard work. Thirty years of work has got me to where I am, there is no shortcut."

It was certainly no easy ride for the journalist – he was even rejected three times by the BBC before finally getting a job at the corporation. He was honoured

IT SAVED MY LIFE: Eltham Hill pupils have a rummage in BBC Newsreader George Alagiah's lucky bag to see if it holds any secrets with an OBE from the Queen. "It was really nerve-wracking," he admitted. "The Queen asked me if the BBC had given me the day off, which I thought was really nice.

"When I met her the second time Barack Obama was also there. The Queen told him: 'He's on my telly every evening'."

The 60 girls were keen to learn the attributes needed to become a successful journalist.

"Most important is to show that you have a genuine interest in telling stories and writing," the 55-year-old said.

Student Rebecca Adeosun told GT: "I thought George was really inspirational and a great role model for aspiring journalists."

Fifteen-year-old Deborah Fatunla added: "It was really nice to see someone who has been through difficulties and come out on top."

George's story was so inspiring, writes Eltham Hill's Janani Arudselvanathan

FOR those of us who are aspiring journalists, George Alagiah's talk was truly uplifting. The well-known BBC News presenter spoke to the 60 Year 10 students about his life and the obstacles he had to overcome to get to where he is today – a leading broadcaster, journalist and author.

George was born in Sri Lanka but then moved to Ghana for greater opportunities.

From there his parents immigrated to England to find a better life.

Alagiah is most famous as the BBC's Six O'Clock evening news anchorman.

He has met many modern day icons including Nelson Mandela, Desmond Tutu and the Queen – most memorably when she presented him with his OBE. Throughout his talk he was so positive about the talents and abilities of the young people of our generation. He told us that we can make a huge impact on society – and the world – if we believe in ourselves and put in the hard work.

Student Paulina Budka said: "He is such an inspirational person and very down to earth too. I never expected him to be so normal!"

It was a privilege to meet him and learn about the journey of his life first hand.

Equestrian centre on Shooters Hill approved

PLANS for an Equestrian Skills Centre in Shooters Hill have been approved by Greenwich Council's Planning Board. The scheme now has to go before the Mayor of London for approval. If granted, it will provide a high quality education and training facility as well riding for schools and local residents. The centre, which is being supported by the British Equestrian Federation, is expected to open around September next year. It will be a key part of the borough's legacy as a host of the London 2012 Games.

The Equestrian Skills Centre will be linked to a specialist horticulture skills centre that will be located on a different site. At its meeting last Thursday, the Planning Board attached a number of conditions to the approval – including a stipulation to return the site to open land should the buildings cease to be used at any point in the future. Councillor Ray Walker, Chair of Greenwich Council's Planning Board said: "This will be a place where local residents can gain skills, training and qualifications – opening up new employment opportunities. The aim is to create a facility that the community can access and enjoy. There are many clear benefits to enjoying riding and working with horses out in the fresh air – particularly for people who live in an urban environment – and we're sure all who use this facility will get a great deal out of it. I know a lot of concerns have been expressed about this project and I want to assure people that these points have been thoroughly considered."

More bins for dog mess please

I AM writing to complain about the lack of dog mess bins (or indeed any bins) in my local area around Bellot Street, Azof Street and Christchurch Way. There is always a large amount of dog mess that makes walking with a pram a very unpleasant experience. Whilst I believe that there is no excuse for not picking up the mess, many people don't bother and I feel the lack of bins is a factor in this. Please could the council look at providing some more around the area?

Many thanks.

Sarah, Greenwich
● THE council's advice to responsible dog owners is that they should clean up after their dogs and "bag and bin" their waste. Wrapped dog waste may be deposited in any general waste litter bin (not in recycling bins please!), or in residents' own residual waste bins, bags, or communal waste bins. Dog owners who do not clean up after their dogs risk being fined a fixed penalty of £75 or up to £1,000 with costs in a magistrates' court. Ed

What about the future of Bluecoat?

RE. the closure of Blackheath Bluecoat - why is a perfectly good school being shut? The staff at the school are brilliant and recognised my elder daughter's dyslexia when others didn't. My younger daughter, who is in Year 7, is an A* student and I am worried how this is going to affect her progress as there are no other Church of England schools in the borough. It is one of the best schools in the borough with a 49 per cent of students getting A*s last year, and now there are going to be 800 students with no where to go as most places in other Greenwich schools are full. As a parent I'm asking all other parents to help save this school. I don't want my child travelling all the way to Wandsworth. Please don't shut Bluecoats.

Mrs Barbara Nash, Plumstead

THE proposal to close Blackheath Bluecoat School is currently subject to consultations with parents and all other interested parties. The final decision about whether or not to close the school will be made in January next year and will take account of all the responses received. Ed

Hospital date

DO we know when the new community hospital on the site of the old Eltham and Mottingham Cottage Hospital in Passey Place will open? Also, do we know when the old Grove Market Place site will be redeveloped as this will boost Eltham High Street and other local businesses. It will help to improve out local town centres and help to create jobs in the retail trades.

Graham Justine, Blackheath

NHS Greenwich replies: NHS Greenwich can confirm that we are continuing with plans to develop a community hospital in Eltham. We hope that the hospital will be ready to open in the autumn of 2014.

I'm fed up with the neglect on my road

AFTER reading your 'Clean it Up' article in GT, I would like to express my disappointment at the way some of my neighbours are neglecting their properties. At the corner of Whetstone Road and Hargood Road, Kidbrooke, the garden and shrubs are all overgrown, and as you come up Whetstone from Hargood there is a garden wall which is crumbling away as well as the front of the house that looks like it is ready to implode. Another property was given a facelift about three years ago (new roof, exterior insulation, new front door, etc). The front garden is often a car park for dumped cars and is full of potholes and not a shrub in sight. It is depressing for my family and I, as well as my immediate neighbours, to have to put up with such neglect. This is a nice road with nice people and it seems a shame that the tone of our road is being lowered by such a mindless minority.

Town square festival celebrates culture of newcomers from Nepal

SINGING, dancing and tasty food from Nepal all featured in a special festival to celebrate Nepalese culture in General Gordon Square earlier this month. Around 1,000 people went along and enjoyed a Saturday of fun and festivities including classical music, Nepalese pop songs, and traditional dances, handicrafts and costumes. All of the action was captured and screened live on the square's big screen. The event was co-organised by a range of organisations representing the Nepalese community in Greenwich with the council's backing. Special guests were the Nepalese ambassador and the Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Jim Gillman, who was presented with the first edition of a Nepalese community magazine for the area. He said: "It was a pleasure to attend this event. The Nepalese are one of the newest communities in Greenwich and it was wonderful to celebrate Nepalese culture and customs in the brand new General Gordon Square. It was great to see the traditional dances and costumes, and to see the local community joining in and celebrating together."

Youth detained for Woolwich disorder

16-year-old sentenced to 12-month detention order

A 16-YEAR-OLD student from Abbey Wood has been sentenced to a 12-month detention and training order following the disorder in Woolwich.

He was arrested at his college by detectives from the Operation Withern team, a specialist group of Greenwich police officers dedicated to arresting those involved in the disorder.

The teenager's sister had recognised him on Youtube as part of a group involved in the disorder that engulfed Woolwich on the evening of August 8.

He appeared at Inner London Crown Court on October 7 where he pleaded guilty to the burglary of Argos in Powis Street and Pound Mart in Woolwich New Road, as well as handling stolen goods from the Great Harry Public House in Wellington Street and violent disorder.

CCTV images show the 16-year-old as part of a group of 30 people throwing missiles at police officers. He can also be seen on camera standing outside the pub where he handles stolen alcohol. More footage also shows the teenager taking soft drinks from Pound Mart and stealing jewellery from Argos.

Detective constable Mark Gilchrist, from the Greenwich Operation Withern team said: "Our team is looking at hours of CCTV, checking the images frame by frame. We are pursuing all investigative leads in order to catch those involved."

Another 16-year-old from Abbey Wood, who caused £3.5 million worth of damage after setting fire to the Great Harry pub on the corner of Wellington Street, appeared in court last Friday, October 14. During the hearing Inner London Crown Court heard that police had clear images of the teenager committing the offence caught on CCTV.

The teenager had pleaded guilty to arson, being reckless as to whether life is endangered, plus a charge of burglary and one of violent disorder at an earlier court appearance. He is due to appear in court on December 2 and has been remanded in custody while psychiatric and pre-sentence reports are submitted to the court.

London walkers asked to make every step count for Cancer Research UK

ADVERTORIAL

THE THOUSANDS of men and women who took part in Cancer Research UK's unique night-time walking event are being urged to step forward with their sponsorship money.

Organisers of Cancer Research UK's Shine London are saying a heart-felt 'thanks' to everyone who took part in the event, which was held for the first time at the start of October:

And they are asking them to make all the fun and emotion of the big night count – by returning money they've raised to Cancer Research UK, where it will be used to fund research which saves lives.

Shine London involved 10,000 people dressed in luminescent clothes and carrying torches, lights and balloons taking to the streets in an inspirational procession, starting at the O2 and passing famous landmarks such as Westminster and Buckingham Palace.

Walkers were able to choose between a full or half marathon route. Participants also had the opportunity to raise funds for a specific area of cancer research including breast cancer, lung cancer and leukaemia.

The event symbolises the light that Cancer Research UK's doctors, nurses and scientists bring to the lives of people affected by cancer through life-saving research.

Joff Charters, Cancer Research UK's Shine Event Manager, said: "Shine London was a fantastic event. 10,000 walkers created an amazing atmosphere on the night. Looking at all the 'back signs' worn by participants declaring why they are taking part was a very emotional experience. Many were cancer survivors themselves or were taking part in tribute to their loved ones whose lives have been touched by the disease. Together they created a vibrant beacon of hope in the city."

Cancer survival rates have doubled since the 1970s and Cancer Research UK's work has been at the heart of that progress.

Research is expensive so Cancer Research UK needs the people of London to help raise £1.4 million from Shine to support it.

Joff added: "We realise that our walkers have already come a very long way, but we are asking them to take just one final step – by returning the money they have raised so that we can go on funding much needed research."

TEAM EFFORT: Woodville residents join forces with council staff volunteers to create a new allotment

What allot we've got!

Teamwork the key as residents get their special place to veg

by Dick Townsend-Smith

RESIDENTS on the Woodville estate in Blackheath will now be able to grow their own fruit and veg on a new allotment, which they have created themselves.

They have transformed a piece of unused and overgrown wasteland outside into a new raised bed, ready for planting seeds and bedding plants.

Greenwich Council owns the land, but not only gave advice on the project but practical help as well. The council's community participation team, which liaises with tenants over housing issues, all volunteered to roll up their sleeves and got stuck in with digging forks, spades and clippers for a day of action on Friday, October 7.

"They gave us advice on turning it from a grassed area into a proper allotment," said Eve Hoyte, the resident behind the idea. "Both the children and the adults are all very excited about it. It will help teach the children that things grow in the ground rather than in the supermarket."

"We want the children to help grow things and nurture them."

Walter Smith, aged 72, used to be a civilian support worker for the police and has lived at Woodville for 40 years. He said: "It will be great for children to plant things and then water them and see them grow."

Resident Sherri Hards said: "We're planning to grow onions and tomatoes, and it's great that council staff are helping us to have a new garden."

Her daughter Della said: "Until now we've only been able to grow a few things on our balcony."

Cllr Steve Offord, the cabinet member for housing, said: "I'm delighted to see council staff helping in a practical way alongside the tenants. This is an excellent example of the community taking responsibility for turning unused space into something that will benefit everyone."

Eve Hoyte added: "It was absolutely super to have the council staff helping us."

Deputy Mayor's tribute to help for the blind

DEPUTY Mayor David Grant met up with a number of local people who attended an event in Westminster to celebrate the work of the BlindAid charity.

Cllr Grant told GT: "I am delighted to be sharing in BlindAid's celebration of its unique work, supporting the lives of blind and partially sighted people in Greenwich. Social isolation is a problem for many and for people living with sight loss it can be particularly difficult to overcome. "BlindAid's home visitors make an important difference to the lives of blind and partially sighted people in London and it is a pleasure to join the charity's

SUPER SERVICE: Cllr Grant with BlindAid service user staff, supporters and service users to recognise this important work." BlindAid's chief executive John Harris said: "BlindAid offers a unique range of services that help more than 2,000 blind and partially sighted people to overcome social isolation and live life to the full." ● FOR more information about BlindAid go to www.blindaids.org.uk

Another Ofsted 'outstanding' for Pound Park

A CHARLTON nursery school has received an 'outstanding' from Ofsted inspectors after an inspection last month. Pound Park nursery school maintained the 'outstandings' grading that it received two years ago.
The school in Pound Park Road, was visited on September 19-20. The inspector's report described the children as achieving extremely well with their "tremendous keenness to learn due in large part to the exceptionally wide and varied curriculum and consistently high quality teaching".

It went on to say: "Many thanks and congratulations to the leadership, staff and governors at Pound Park who make this a school where "all children have opportunities to flourish".
Headteacher Sheena Gilby said: "We have maintained our Outstanding grading from last time due to the relentless focus on quality here at Pound Park and the strength of the staff team and governing body. The staff here all work incredibly well together to create the best environment for the children to flourish. We do also embrace the concept of the "Unique Child" which means we plan for all the children so all our children make excellent progress throughout their time with us."

THE NEW WINE CHRISTMAS HAMPER INITIATIVE IS SPONSORED SOLELY BY THE GENEROUS DONATIONS OF THE MEMBERS OF NEW WINE CHURCH; AND DOES NOT BENEFIT FROM ANY PUBLIC FUNDING.

This initiative is designed to assist families who find Christmas a difficult period financially - primarily low income, and single parent families as well as the elderly.
If you collect a hamper without falling into this category, you abuse the goodwill of the donors and deprive a family who genuinely needs this opportunity.

Toy box gift welcomed by children's ward

THE children's ward at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital got a surprise gift from the kind father of a young patient this autumn. Youngsters on Safari Ward now have a wooden toy shed to keep their play equipment safely stored. The shed was paid for with money raised by Daniel Chart, whose daughter Lillie Ann was a patient on the ward. Daniel, 37, thought it would be a nice tribute to donate the toy shed to the ward as a thank you for all the care they'd been giving to his daughter. Five-year-old Lillie Ann, who goes to Millennium primary school, has a rare condition which means her muscles are wasting away as her brain sends distorted messages to the nerve cells in her spinal chord. Daniel, who lives in Millennium Village, raised the £250 to buy the toy shed with the help of the local community. He told GT: "It took around three weeks to raise the funds for the shed, all thanks to local businesses and residents of Greenwich. I wanted to say a big thank you to all the staff who care for Lillie Ann. They all do an amazing job at providing care to her and the children. Anyone who has ever had a child stay on Safari Ward knows just how important these donations are to the children's ward." Senior play specialist of South London Healthcare Trust David Eaton said: "We'd like to thank David and his family for this kind donation. The toy shed will keep all the toys safe and in good condition. These kind of donations really make a difference to the children on the ward."

Mayor's brew at the barracks

MEMBERS of the Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Families Association (SSAFA) enjoyed their annual Big Brew Up - and cakes - at Woolwich Barracks in the company of Mayor of Greenwich Jim Gillman on October 7. The national charity held the event in aid of members of the armed forces and their families. Cllr Gillman told GT: "It was lovely to spend some time with members of our armed forces and their families over a cup of tea. It's important we value the forces and events such as the Big Brew Up provide invaluable support for them."

TWELVE digital businesses have moved into the newly-opened Digital Enterprise Centre located in Mitre Passage.

The prestigious new building managed by Greenwich Council offers two top floors totalling 21,000 sq ft, an unrivalled package of facilities, high speed communications, exhibition space and panoramic views over the River Thames.

The centre offers businesses the chance to work with digital experts and students at the neighbouring Ravensbourne college, which has world-class digital facilities.

It is also home to part of the University of Greenwich's School of Computing and Mathematical Sciences which offers businesses access to the uni's software engineering expertise.

One digital company which has already moved in is called CoApperative, and was launched just over a year ago. It employs eight people, who are all founder members of the business. Chief executive James Ghani, from Blackheath, told GT: "Our company moved into Mitre Passage because we thought it was a pioneering opportunity. We feel there is huge, untapped potential south of the river and there are young, employable people here."

"We can start to do innovative things here because there is so much potential, Ravensbourne has a very good reputation, and Greenwich has a much-admired university with large computing and mathematics faculties. We are delighted to be working with them. I see the peninsula as the jewel in Greenwich's crown."

Another company now based in Mitre Passage is Failbetter Games, which designs computer games. It now employs six people and director Alexis Kennedy told GT: "We used to be based at the Incubation Centre at Ravensbourne, before we moved here. We think it is really great, and the facilities here are really good."

"The transport facilities here are excellent, and it is great for us to have our own space. The idea that the peninsula is getting a name for becoming a silicon valley sounds really great as well."

The company has been working on a big project for publishing company Random House, which involves a web game for a newly-published book called The Night Circus.

The facilities at Mitre Passage include a range of small cellular offices, open-plan workstations, touch-down facilities, plug and play office space, meeting rooms and hot-desking. Cllr Denise Hyland, the council's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "The Digital Enterprise Centre is, without doubt, a stunning location which offers the full package."

"We have first-class communications facilities coupled with a fantastic office provision – but this isn't just about the space. Businesses which come here will form part of a digital community which can only help bring them success via the networking and collaboration opportunities."

"They can also tap into the wealth of digital knowledge at the world-renowned Ravensbourne next door, which will work extremely closely with businesses of any size who set up here, and Greenwich University's School of Computing and Mathematical Sciences. The Peninsula, and the borough as a whole, present an extremely attractive offer to anyone wishing to bring their business here."

The peninsula partnership des

THE prestigious Ravensbourne on the Greenwich Peninsula has already attracted 80 companies to its business incubation programme.

"They come in and use our facilities, technology, and desk space and collaborate with our students to help them bring new services and products to market," said Chris Thompson, a digital specialist working with Ravensbourne and Greenwich Council.

"They include software and gaming companies, architecture and fashion, and Greenwich Council wants to attract more businesses like them to set up and flourish on the peninsula. More are applying to join Ravensbourne every day. Our vision is to have attracted another 200 businesses to the incubator by the end of 2013."

The Ravensbourne building also houses Greenwich Digital Skills (GDS), a joint initiative with the council to provide training, enterprise courses and courses in design and the digital media for local residents and small businesses.

It aims to help local people and entrepreneurs use digital media to improve their skills and grow their business competitiveness. It will also work with schools in organising visits, events and short courses to help young people in the borough understand the relevance of digital skills and open up career choices in a range of subjects.

All the signs are pointing to Ravensbourne playing an equally crucial role in the regeneration of the peninsula. Cllr Denise Hyland, the council's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, told GT: "There is a huge future ahead for North Greenwich, which will bring prosperity and new jobs to the borough."

the digital arts

THE arrival of Digital Enterprise Greenwich and Ravensbourne has helped to spearhead a new direction for Greenwich Peninsula. As well as being an entertainment district, the area in North Greenwich is fast becoming a major hub for companies in the digital industry. They are keen to take advantage of the college's expertise and a range of specialist facilities on offer at the college and the neighbouring Digital Enterprise Centre set up by Greenwich Council. Now Cisco, a world leading technology firm and Olympic sponsor, has moved in cementing the peninsula's reputation as a centre of technological innovation. It all helps to attract new businesses, and further investment, to the area, which is good news for people across the borough.

FANTASTIC FACILITIES: members of Failbetter Games were among the first to move into the Greenwich Enterprise Centre in Mitre Passage

A BRAND new training project to help businesses develop and market themselves has opened as part of the facilities at Ravensbourne. Designer Academy will initially be offering short two-five day courses in graphic design and web design at the university college. Designer Academy's director, James Rangel said: "We decided to locate at Ravensbourne, Greenwich Peninsula because it's so close to central London and we found the new growing digital community there was a great pull for our business."

Teaching staff are all industry-led practitioners and qualified instructors. A range of graphic design courses are on offer including Photoshop, Illustrator, InDesign, Fireworks and Acrobat Dreamweaver along with web design training in Flash and Flash Catalyst. Local businesses and residents can get discounts on selected courses through Greenwich Council's GreenwichCard scheme.

It's a family affair for happy Shappi

BBC Radio 4 comic and McIntyre's Roadshow favourite Shappi Khorsandi's childhood inspired her new show...

THERE'S no place to hide for Shappi Khorsandi when she brings her new stand-up show to Blackheath later this week. The comedian's confessional offering, Me and My Brother in Our Pants, Holding Hands, is on at Blackheath Halls this Saturday, October 22.

"The show is a tribute to siblinghood," Shappi told Scene. "I chat about the relationship I have with my brother, the pitfalls, the highs, the low, and the period we grew up in, the 1970s. Anyone with siblings will know where I'm coming from!"

Shappi's no stranger to the borough – she played the Greenwich Comedy Festival in September. This time around her show strikes a more personal note.

"I wanted to do a show about the relationship me and my brother had because we had such a close one growing up," she added. "We were very close in age, just a year between us and we relied on each other for everything and lived in each other's pockets."

"We were kind of left to our devices in a way. Because I was a girl I always felt my brother had been short-changed somehow, that he would have preferred a baby brother, another boy to play with."

"So I developed a tomboy kind of persona to banter with him. Our parents lived a hectic life and it gave us time to explore our own entertainment".

The 38-year-old realised she could make people laugh at an early age.

"From about the age of eight I used to do like doing Margaret Thatcher impression," the comedian said. "This amused my friends no end and I liked the idea of making people laugh. I loved watching comics like Richard Pryor and Eddie Murphy. I also loved the British comics of the time like Ben Elton, Jo Brand and Alexei Sayle."

"I became obsessed with comedy and the atmosphere of it all. I was going to watch shows in comedy clubs and seeing it live in front of me made it a realistic ambition, something I could actually take my hand to and I finally plucked up the courage to get on stage when I was about 24. I had to do hard grafting and get some good management and make myself a success on my own merit."

Shappi, who has her own BBC Radio 4 show Shappi Talk, has had a busy time of late. She sold out her Edinburgh show, The Moon on a Stick, had a nomination at the prestigious British Comedy Awards and also wrote her autobiography, A Beginners Guide to Acting English. Shappi says the biggest inspiration for her is real life. "In modern comedy some artists like to joke about ideas in their material I wouldn't necessarily do," she said. "I like to make fun of myself and embellish."

She's not surprised that stand-up is a male-dominated arena. But she's had to adapt.

"I don't think femininity or girliness has a place on stage as a comedian," Shappi said, "You need to almost be made of steel, drop any kind of female traits and get in the mode of entertaining as an artist irrespective of your gender."

The stand-up is touring her show across the country, but the comedian is always looking ahead.

"I've been writing short films for Sky, doing radio sitcoms and I've just recorded the third series of Live at the Apollo which should be coming out soon. But mainly I've been writing, writing and writing - something I love to do and something that is part of every element of my work from the radio to the stand up."

Grace Lipski

I-Dentity

THE STEPHEN LAWRENCE GALLERY hosts a display of photographic work from young people from Iran and south-east London later this month. The free exhibition, called Imagining Identity, takes place from October 24 at the venue in the Old Royal Naval College. The images reflect the photographers' individual worlds socially and culturally, including issues which may impact their lives, like the media and fashion. Participants are of similar age but contribute different social and cultural aspects with some coming from the Iranian Youth Development Association in South East London and others from the Omid-e-Mehr rehabilitation Centre in Tehran for disadvantaged young women. It's on until November 11 Monday to Friday from 10am to 5pm and Saturday 11am to 4pm. The exhibition will also offer screenings including Iranian documentary 'The Glass House' on October 29 which will be followed by a Q&A session.

Their way...

TURN right out of North Greenwich tube station and head down Memory Lane... that's one way to describe a visit to the Indigo2 next week, when the Rat Pack Live is on at the venue. The music of Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr gets dusted down for the tribute concert on Thursday October 27.

The performers will be treating the audiences to all the songs the Rat Pack was associated and known for. Hits like New York, The Lady is a Tramp and Luck be a Lady all get an airing. The guys are also remembered for their solo hits. Dean Martin's Everybody Loves Somebody, Sammy Davis's Me and my Shadow and Sinatra's Fly me to the Moon and My Way will all feature too.

Rat Pack Live is on at the Indigo2 on Oct 27 from 7.30pm. Tickets from £28.50. Call 0844 844 0002 or visit www.theo2.co.uk/indigo2

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 258

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.
For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways

Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or Via the Council's website

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes
